Professional Experience

Ben is an industrial agent based in Los Angeles, California, with a strong foundation in commercial real estate built through two years of experience in investor relations at a multifamily investment and management firm. During this time, he worked closely with ownership and internal teams, gaining hands-on exposure to financial reporting, investor communications, and asset-level performance analysis.

Ben has supported acquisition and asset management teams by analyzing operating results, preparing investor materials, and assisting in the evaluation of investment opportunities. This background has provided him with a solid understanding of real estate fundamentals, capital markets, and the analytical drivers behind successful transactions.

Known for a strong work ethic and client-focused approach, Ben brings a disciplined, detail-oriented mindset to industrial brokerage and is committed to delivering value to owners, investors, and tenants throughout the Los Angeles market. Ben is eager to continue growing within the industrial sector while building long-term client relationships through integrity, market knowledge, and execution.
